Services.

Thank you for reading the CUCS Report. Our goal is to make sure New Yorkers and the experience and commitment of the most vulnerable New Yorkers.

In the past 12 months and to renew our commitment to each other and to our clients for the year ahead. All of us on our advisory board, our staff, our supporters, who have helped CUCS move our mission forward and our clients for inspiring us and our organization, and our clients for informing every step of the way.

As we begin the new year, we want to take a moment to reflect on the year that was and to express our deepest gratitude to you, our cherished supporters, who have helped CUCS move our mission forward.

Looking ahead, we are hopeful to do more, to serve more, to support more, and to hope more.

You will also read about how our staff and volunteers are working to build strong connections with clients, how we are developing new programs to address the root causes of homelessness, and how we are advocating for policies that will help end homelessness.

At CUCS Supportive Housing, our work with individuals experiencing homelessness who previously had very little or no support is our mission. We are committed to being there to support clients during the moment captured us laughing hysterically, which was a positive experience for the client and for the rest of the team. His demeanor gradually changed as he began to feel safe, supported, and hopeful.

The HOPE Count is an estimate, and measures only a single moment in time. However, this annual count is crucial for understanding the extent of homelessness and for informing policy makers and service providers about the needs of those who are living unsheltered. Each January, thousands of volunteers across the five boroughs of New York City conduct late-night canvassing, starting at 11 p.m. and continuing until early morning.

Volunteers, equipped with a special kit, train to detect and provide help to individuals experiencing homelessness. The kit includes blankets, toiletries, and snacks, as well as information on where to go for help. The kits are available in both English and Spanish, and they are designed to provide comfort and care to those who are living unsheltered.

On the move are our Street Outreach teams. Our Street Outreach program is designed to connect with individuals who are living unsheltered, offering them support, resources, and hope. Our teams are trained to identify individuals through their behavior, clothing, and other factors that might indicate homelessness. Once identified, the HOPE team will try to contact the individual and offer them help. In that case, the HOPE team will try to arrange assistance or transport for the individual.

As we look forward to 2024, we are excited to announce that our Annual Points of Light Banquet is just around the corner. This year, we will be honoring our Front-Line Staff who make a real difference in the lives of our clients. Our Front-Line Staff are the heart and soul of CUCS, providing support and resources to those who need it most.

Dear Friends of CUCS,

We are proud to share with you a story of hope.

The moment captured us laughing hysterically, which was a positive experience for the client and for the rest of the team. His demeanor gradually changed as he began to feel safe, supported, and hopeful.

Thank you for your ongoing support. In the past 12 months and to renew our commitment to each other and to our clients for inspiring us and our organization, and our clients for informing every step of the way.

looking ahead, we are hopeful to do more, to serve more, to support more, and to hope more.

You will also read about how our staff and volunteers are working to build strong connections with clients, how we are developing new programs to address the root causes of homelessness, and how we are advocating for policies that will help end homelessness.

At CUCS Supportive Housing, our work with individuals experiencing homelessness who previously had very little or no support is our mission. We are committed to being there to support clients during the moment captured us laughing hysterically, which was a positive experience for the client and for the rest of the team. His demeanor gradually changed as he began to feel safe, supported, and hopeful.

The HOPE Count is an estimate, and measures only a single moment in time. However, this annual count is crucial for understanding the extent of homelessness and for informing policy makers and service providers about the needs of those who are living unsheltered. Each January, thousands of volunteers across the five boroughs of New York City conduct late-night canvassing, starting at 11 p.m. and continuing until early morning.

Volunteers, equipped with a special kit, train to detect and provide help to individuals experiencing homelessness. The kit includes blankets, toiletries, and snacks, as well as information on where to go for help. The kits are available in both English and Spanish, and they are designed to provide comfort and care to those who are living unsheltered.

On the move are our Street Outreach teams. Our Street Outreach program is designed to connect with individuals who are living unsheltered, offering them support, resources, and hope. Our teams are trained to identify individuals through their behavior, clothing, and other factors that might indicate homelessness. Once identified, the HOPE team will try to contact the individual and offer them help. In that case, the HOPE team will try to arrange assistance or transport for the individual.

As we look forward to 2024, we are excited to announce that our Annual Points of Light Banquet is just around the corner. This year, we will be honoring our Front-Line Staff who make a real difference in the lives of our clients. Our Front-Line Staff are the heart and soul of CUCS, providing support and resources to those who need it most.